

Terms and Conditions

1. Attendees are responsible for their own safety and security while attending the conference online. The organizers of the conference shall not be held responsible for any technological issues, cyber attacks, or other online security incidents that may occur.
2. The organizers reserve the right to cancel or postpone the conference due to circumstances beyond their control, including but not limited to natural disasters, technical issues, or other unforeseen circumstances. In the event of cancellation or postponement, the organizers shall not be held liable for any costs incurred by attendees, including travel, lodging, or registration fees.
3. The organizers shall not be held responsible for the content of presentations, discussions, or any other materials shared during the conference. The opinions expressed by presenters and attendees do not necessarily reflect the views of the organizers. Attendees must ensure that all material presented or submitted is their own original work, and not plagiarized from any other source.
4. The organizers shall not be held liable for any consequences that may result for any instance of plagiarism or academic dishonesty. Any case of plagiarism by an attendee will result in immediate expulsion from the conference, and may be reported to the appropriate academic or legal authorities.
5. Attendees must comply with all applicable laws and regulations while participating in the conference online. Any violation of these laws or regulations is the sole responsibility of the attendee, and the organizers shall not be held liable for any consequences that may result.
6. The organizers reserve the right to record or livestream portions of the conference for promotional or archival purposes. Attendees who do not wish to be recorded or livestreamed should contact the organizers prior to the conference.
7. The organizers shall not be held liable for any technical issues, interruptions, or disruptions to the conference caused by an attendee's internet connection or device. Attendees are responsible for ensuring that their internet connection and device meet the minimum requirements for attending the conference.
8. The organizers shall not be held liable for any damages or losses incurred by attendees as a result of using any third-party platforms or services required to attend the conference, such as video conferencing or chat platforms.
9. Attendees must adhere to the conference schedule and attend all sessions for which they have registered. Any attendee who fails to attend a scheduled session without prior notice to the organizers may be barred from attending future conference sessions.
10. The organizers reserve the right to change the conference schedule or program at any time, without prior notice to attendees. Attendees will be notified of any changes as soon as possible, and are responsible for ensuring that they are aware of any changes to the schedule.

By participating in this hybrid conference, attendees agree to these terms and conditions and acknowledge that the organizers of the conference shall not be held liable for any issues that may arise, including plagiarism or academic dishonesty, recording or livestreaming of conference materials, technical issues with attendees' internet connection or device, damages or losses resulting from third-party platforms or services, changes to the conference schedule or program, or failure to attend scheduled sessions.